

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A semiconductor laser device has a pair of cladding layers with an active layer interposed therebetween. At least one of the cladding layers is of the same composition through the entire region of the cladding layer, excluding a dopant in the cladding layer, and has a stripe portion different in conductivity type from adjacent portions.